Alderbury

ALDERBURY is a parish and village, giving name to the hundred and union in which it is situated, in the Southern division of the county, Salisbury county court district, diocese and arch deaconry of Salisbury, and rural deanery of Amesbury, 3 miles south-east from Salisbury, 5 ½ south-west from West Dean, and 87 from London, on the Southampton road. The ancient church of St. Mary was pulled down in 1857, and a handsome new church, of flint with stone dressings, erected on the site: it is a cruciform edifice, in the Early English style, with a cross surmounting each gable, and a lofty spire: the interior has a nave, chancel, north aisle, and transepts: there are two fine stained glass windows, that in the transept being the gift of Sir Frederick H. Bathurst, Bart., and the other in the nave, presented by a former vicar. The register dates from 1673. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelries of Pitton and Farley annexed, joint annual value £470, in the patronage of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held by the Rev. Robert Sparke Hutchings, M.A., of Christ Church, Oxford. The following is a list of the places in Alderbury union : Alderbury, Britford, Clarendon Park, Coombe Bissett, Downton, Earldoms, Fisherton Anger, East Grimstead, West Grimstead, West Hamham, Homington, Landford, Langley Wood, Laverstock, Milford, Nunton-with-Bodenham, Odstock, Old Sarum or Old Castle, Pitton and Farley, Standlinch, Stratford St. Anthony or Stratford Tony, Stratford-under-the-Castle, the Close of the Canons of the Cathedral Church (Salisbury), Whiteparish and Winterslow. Alderbury House is the seat of G. Fort, Esq. Viscount Folkestone (who is lord of the manor), Sir Frederick H. Bathurst, and G. Fort, Esq., are the chief landowners. The soil is gravel; subsoil, gravel and sand. The chief crops are wheat, barley, and turnips. The parish contained in 1861 (including the chapelries of Farley and Pitton), 1,334 inhabitants, of whom 697 were in the township of Alderbury; the area is 2,175 acres

At Farley is an hospital for six poor men and as many aged women, founded by Sir Stephen Fox in 1688. This place is a chapelry and township, 4 miles east from Salisbury, near the Salisbury railway, with a population of 241.

Pitton is a chapelry and township, with 396 inhabitants, 4 miles north-east from Salisbury, The church, which is a very plain old edifice, consists of nave, chancel, north transept, and low belfry (with 1 bell) on the south side, through which is the entrance door; small crosses surmount the east and west gables: it has seats for 250, one half the sittings being free. There is a National School.

Clarendon Park, formerly extra-parochial, is about a mile eastward from Alderbury, with 181 inhabitants, and 4,160 acres. Here stood a royal palace, which was a frequent residence of the English kings, and was visited by Queen Elizabeth. Henry II assembled a Parliament here in 1163, which enacted the celebrated "Constitutions of Clarendon," to restrain the encroachments of the Court of Rome: the only remains of the palace are part of a wall overgrown with ivy. About a mile from the ruins is Clarendon Park, the seat of Sir F. H. Bathurst, Bart. Near it formerly stood an Augustine priory, founded by Henry II.

Waddon is a hamlet, one mile south-east from Alderbury.
