

CORONERS INQUESTS

Frederick James Palmer

At Collingbourne Kingston, on Frederick James Palmer, aged 8 months. Deceased was sent to bed apparently well, and at 5 o'clock in the morning his mother heard him moan, and he died one hour after, before a surgeon could arrive (according to the medical evidence) from exhaustion. The jury returned a verdict accordingly and blamed the parents for not providing more nourishing food for deceased.

Bath Chronicle, Thursday, 12 November 1874