

Dinton - Dalwood Letters

Sutton. 22nd January 1844.

Dear George,

I suppose the intelligence has reached you that a charge of sedition has been preferred against O'Connell and others, but the trial is going on at present, and it is generally thought they will be found guilty. There is a very good work come out which at present possesses great interest, entitles 'Ireland before and after the Union.' The author's name is Martin, and he proves that since the Union the population has doubled, and her commerce quadrupled, which is rather a different song than Dan has been singing for the past year.

Your affectionate brother,

JOHN WYNDHAM
