LIEUTENANT

OGILVIE J. MARCHBANK

CANADIAN ENGINEERS

2ND JUNE, 1918

Ogilvie James MARCHBANK

Ogilvie James Marchbank was born on 22nd March, 1892 in Glasgow, Scotland.

The 1900 United States Census recorded Ogilvie Marchbank as an 8 year old living with his family at Beach Street, Revere, Suffolk, Massachusetts. His father was recorded as William Marchbank (Salesman (Travelling), aged 55, emigrated in 1893). Also included in the household were 2 older brothers of Ogilvie's – George (Bookkeeper, aged 28, emigrated in 1892) & William (Salesman, aged 25, emigrated in 1890) as well as Evelyn – daughter-in-law of William Snr (aged 24) & Gordon – grandson of William Snr (aged 8 months, born Massachusetts).

The 1901 Census of Canada recorded Ogilvie Marchbank as a 9 year old living with his sister – Elizabeth Dumma (aged 24, emigrated 1893) & her husband James Dumma (Bookkeeper, aged 31, emigrated 1891). Ogilvie had emigrated in 1893. They were living at Bridgeburg (Village), in the district of Welland, Ontario, Canada.

Ogilvie James Marchbank enlisted with Canadian Over-seas Expeditionary Force on 5th June, 1916 at Montreal. He was a single, Civil Engineer, aged 24 years & 2 months, living at 504 Oxford Ave, Montreal when he enlisted. His next-of-kin was listed as his father – William Marchbank. His religion was listed as Presbyterian.

On 24th October, 1916 Lieutenant Ogilvie James Marchbank signed his Officers' Declaration Paper. He was attached to Divisional Signal Company Unit (3 months) at the time of signing the declaration & had served with McGill C.O.T.C. (2 seasons). His next-of-kin was still listed as his father – William Marchbank of 504 Oxford Ave, Montreal.

Lieutenant Ogilvie James Marchbank died on 2nd June, 1918 in Military Hospital, Fargo, Salisbury Plain. The Canadian Expeditionary Force -Commonwealth War Graves Register records Lieutenant O. J. Marchbank as being attached to Canadian Engineers seconded to R.A.F. It states that he died from burns to head, trunk & limbs in an Aero Accident.

A death for Ogilvie J. Marchbank was registered in the June quarter, 1918 in the district of Amesbury, Wiltshire, England.
