

Joseph Ricketts

Horse and Cattle Medicine Dispensary and Circulating Library, Highworth, Wilts

Joseph Ricketts, Druggist, Printer, Stationer, Patent Medicine Vendor, &c, returns his sincere acknowledgments to those numerous Friends who have hitherto so liberally honored him with their support in the above line; at the same time, soliciting a continuance of that support, he begs to observe, that, owing to the great multiplicity of his concerns at home, he will, in future, be necessitated to transfer to his son, Joseph Ricketts, of Castle Eaton, all cases of Farriery, except; those of extreme urgency, wherein he will feel happy to dispense his advice and assistance to the utmost of his ability, as heretofore. And, as a long course of successful exertion is the best criterion of professional knowledge, J Ricketts flatters himself, that twenty years' experience in the most difficult cases of Veterinary practice, as well as the compounding and preparing of Medicines in general, will entitle him, with some degree of confidence, to state, that in most curable diseases incident to Horses or Cattle, his remedies will be found rarely to fail in producing the most beneficial effects.

Personal or written applications, stating the exact symptoms of the disease in Horse, Cows, sheep &c will be promptly attended to, and such medicines prepared as the nature of the complaint might appear to require. Prescriptions carefully prepared. - Drugs warranted genuine.

Berkshire Chronicle Saturday 19 February 1825