

The Green Dragon Inn

Celebrating The Abolition Of The Turnpike Gates

The festivities to celebrate the abolition of the turnpike gates on the Lavington district of road commenced on Monday evening last, by a ball at the Green Dragon Inn, Market Lavington, which was attended by many of the respectable families in the neighbourhood. The gates are to be thrown open to-morrow, which will be a grand holiday; and the Hon. Capt. Bouverie will, we understand, condescend to take the chair at a public dinner. In the evening there will be a bonfire on Lavington-hill, which will be the largest ever seen in this county; and from the height of the hill, it will no doubt be visible at a vast distance.

Salisbury and Winchester Journal, Monday 7 February 1825