St. Michael the Archangel

This painting commemorates the renovation of the East Widow. An architect's drawing of the window tracery was made on which people could write their names or dedications for a minimum sum. On completion of the repairs the names were transferred onto a framed facsimile of the restored widow. It was promoted as

Have Your Name in Lights

That is

Leaded Lights

The idea captured people's imagination and a substantial sum was raised in this way.

Ann Read produced the oil painting and David Longbourne did the calligraphy.
