

Salisbury Mechanics Institute

An admirable lecture was delivered to the members of this institution, on Thursday evening last, by the Rev. J. Barfitt, "on Language, and the English Language in particular." The Reverend gentlemen displayed an intimate familiarity with his subject. His sketch of the origin, growth and structure of the English Language, was not only deeply interesting, but some parts of it, truly eloquent. The Reverend lecturer intimated by his purpose of resuming the subject, which was received by the warmest signs of approbation.

Wiltshire Independent, December 1896