

Death of Mr C Daubeny of the Brow, Combe Down., a gentleman who for more than 30 years has been a familiar figure in Bath society. Mr Daubeny was the second son of the late Rev George William Daubeny of Seend, Wilts, and was born in 1816, so that he was 79 at his death. He elected to follow the medical profession, and shortly after he had passed the necessary examination he obtained an appointment as assistant surgeon in the East India Company's Service, and went out to India about 1843, where he remained till about 1852 when he returned to England. Shortly after this he held an appointment as assistant surgeon on board the "Dreadnought", and after retaining this post for about a year he finally retired from professional practice.

In 1856 he married a daughter of the late Rev Henry Cripps, vicar of Preston, Gloucestershire. They resided for some years in Edinburgh and Clifton, but in 1863 they moved to the Brow, Combe Down, and made that their permanent residence. Mr Daubeny was much interested in politics and a staunch supporter of the Conservative and Unionist cause. He had from time to time been a member of various local bodies. He has left a widow, and one son, who is married and holds an official appointment under the Rajah of Sarawak, Borneo....

....On the cover was a full length oak cross and on the brass plate was the following inscription:-

Charles Daubeny

Born 22nd April 1816

Died 27th December 1895

Bath Chronicle and Weekly Gazette Thursday 2 January 1896

