

HONOURING THE AUSTRALIAN DEAD

Members of the 4th Wiltshire Regiment watching over the war graves in the cemetery at Sutton Veny, Wiltshire, England, on Anzac Sunday. In the village churchyard 150 members of the A.I.F. are buried and many ex-service men will remember the village as a training ground rendezvous during the Great War.

(The West Australian, Perth, W.A. – Thursday 6 July 1933)

LEST WE FORGET

LEST WE FORGET: School children placing flowers on Australian graves at Sutton Veny during the last Anzac Day Service. Over 150 graves received posies of flowers.

(Western Mail, Perth, W.A. – Thursday 6 July 1933)
