OPC Notes

The above monument was erected by Edward Eyre (d 5 Nov 1739) at the St. Nicholas' Collegiate Church, Galway, Ireland.

The Eyre family were probably the most successful of the Protestant families to settle in Galway in the aftermath of the siege of the town in 1652, and the subsequent confiscation of the property of the old merchant families. The family can be traced to Giles Eyre of Brickworth, in the parish of Whiteparish, Wiltshire.

Edward died on the 14th April 1683 and was buried in the College Church of St. Nicholas in the town of Galway. His father was Giles Eyres of Brickworth (1572-1655) and buried at Whiteparish All Saints Church. There is a wall tablet to his memory, inside the church.

Extract from Wiltshire Notes and Queries, Sept 1905

"The Brickworth estate which formed part of the tithing of Abbotstone, was conveyed on 15 May 1605 to Giles Eyre, then of Redlynch, by Richard Plott of Wantage, Berks and John Lamb of Coulston Wilts for the sum of £950 and in 1628, William, the brother of Giles, granted him "all his lands in Brickworth". The Eyre family was connected with this tithing as far back as Edward II's reign when we find in the Nomina Villarum a Thomas le Eyre mentioned as one of the three proprietors in this tithing of Abbotstone."

ABBOTSTONE, a tything in the parish of Whiteparish and hundred of Trustfield, in county Wiltshire, 7 miles S.E. of Salisbury.
